1996 HOWLER

*Volume 94
Wake Forest University
Winston-Salem, NC 27109*

In its ninety-fourth year of publication, the Howler attempts to capture the Wake Forest community through selected photographs which were collected throughout the year and which portray student life at Wake Forest. The Howler gets its name from a monthly newsletter which was posted on a tree on the old campus and "howled out" information to the students who passed by. The original publication of the Howler, in 1902, took its name from the tree on which the newsletters were posted. While the publication has changed a great deal since it originated, the goal of the book is still the same--to create a picture of student life on campus and tell the story of a year at Wake Forest.

ALL CONVOCATION

All photos by Bryan Herring

While working on the civil rights case of Swann vs. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Board of Education in November 1965, a bomb exploded outside the house of the young attorney, Mr. Julius Chambers. Despite the harassment and terrorism, Chambers continued to work on the case which was heard by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1971 and led to federal busing as a means for desegregation in public schools.

Mr. Chambers spoke on "The Future of Race Relations in America" at the Opening Convocation on Thursday, September 14, 1995, in Wait Chapel. He concentrated on the historical perspective of race relations in America and identified the challenges that lie in the future.

Presentations were also made at the Opening Convocation for the Jon Reinhardt Award for Distinguished Teaching, and the Schoonmaker Faculty Award for Community Service. New Faculty were introduced as well as the Judicial Board, Honor Council, and Student Counselors.

FAMILY WEEKEND

Families travel to Wake Forest from all over the country to check on their college student and spend a little quality time with their child on the recently renamed Family Weekend. Students take time out of their busy schedules to entertain their families.

Wake Forest had many activities planned to keep families busy during the weekend. The Secrest Artist Series presented Anthony and Joseph Paratore, pianists, on Friday night. Student Union hosted a family tailgate before the football game against Maryland on Saturday. Following the game the Feticcini Brothers performed a comedy act in Wait Chapel. The Wake Forest Theater Department presented Noises Off throughout the weekend.

Aside from activities at Wake Forest there were several local events including the Dixie Classic Fair. The events concluded with a Sunday Brunch.

The weekend seemed all too short, especially for the departing families. However, they realized that their student had a new home and a part in an even bigger family.

HOMECOMING

Although the 1995 football season left Wake Forest fans sad and disappointed, the Deacon Spirit continued to thrive. After three weeks of away games, the Demon Deacon football team received a warm Homecoming.

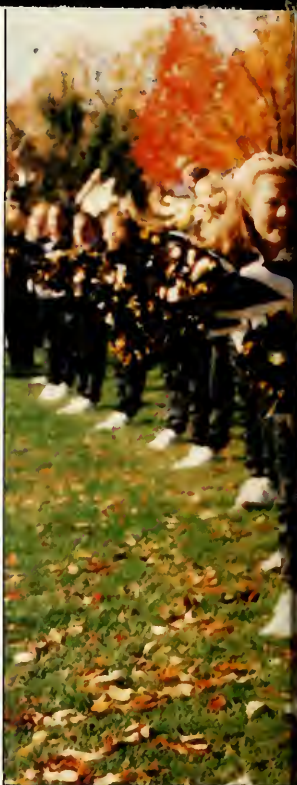

With many factions of the campus organizing various Homecoming celebrations, Wake Forest's 1995 Homecoming proved our spirit will never die.

The Student Union sponsored many events in celebration of Homecoming, not just for the student, but also for the Wake Forest family. Jason Howard of Student Union said their main objective revolved around providing entertainment at the stadium as well as the campus. The Carnival on the Quad united students, faculty, parents, and alumni as a pre-game festivity, primarily to precede tailgating and events at the stadium. At noon the Big Kid's Games shut down, and the focus shifted from campus to Groves Stadium.

Student Union members were very busy at the stadium, making pre-game decorations for fans and students, decorating the tunnel for the fearless football team's entrance, not to mention preparing for the half-time presentation of the 1995 Homecoming Court. Black Student Alliance proudly sponsored the 1995 Homecoming King and Queen, junior Jamey Spencer and senior Ingrid Hoover, while the Kappa Alpha sponsored Kristen Bauer was awarded Homecoming Princess.

Other Homecoming-weekend activities included those organized by Black Student Alliance and the Office of Multicultural Affairs. After a panel discussion and a jazz mixer co-sponsored by the Asian Student Association on Friday, Homecoming Day activities included and Alpha Phi Alpha step show, an appearance by renowned comedian Michael Colyar, vocal performances by NiShati and Racial Harmony, and an outstanding Homecoming Gym Jam.

All in all, the 1995 WFU Homecoming provided everyone the ability to illustrate his or her Deacon Spirit.

A Moravian Holiday Tradition

LOVEFEAST

The Moravian Lovefeast is a tradition that has been celebrated in Winston-Salem, since the establishment of this community. It is also a tradition that Wake Forest students have been celebrating for 30 years now. This year marked the 30th anniversary of the first Wake Forest Lovefeast held in Davis Chapel. Since then, the event has grown tremendously. On December 3, 1996, students packed Wait Chapel to participate in this holiday event. The chapel reverberated with the sounds from the university Flute Choir, Concert Choir, and Handbell Choir. Students partook of love buns and the traditional sweet coffee. The evening was concluded with the illumination of the chapel as students sang Christmas hymns.

The carillon has called you;

The luminaries have guided you;

the Moravian band has shared their tradition with you;

Three choirs will nourish you.

'Tis the SEASON

Once again the holiday season marked the end of the fall semester and the beginning of the spirit of giving. Wake Forest student organizations were very involved with service efforts to make the holidays wonderful for everyone. Also, the closing of the semester called for hours upon hours of studying for finals.

The Volunteer Service Corps sponsored Santa Saturday which brought underprivileged children to campus to help them make gifts for their loved ones. An angel tree was set up in Benson University Center and, thanks to the efforts of Student Union, many needy children had gifts for Christmas. Some hall governments adopted families for the holidays.

With the pressure of finals and the joyfulness of the season, students, faculty, and staff gladly went home for a month of rejuvenation for the upcoming spring semester.

The 16th annual Springfest brought the usual celebrations. However, for the first time this year, Springfest also brought an opportunity for students to volunteer in the Wilds of Winston-Salem. The Volunteer Service Corps sponsored the first ever WILD service project. Over 100 students volunteered at 17 different sites across Winston-Salem. Some of these sites included Smart Start, Speas Elementary, Crisis Control, and Goodwill Industries. The day of service began at 8:00 with motivation and enlistment on the Quad. From there, students headed out into the city and worked 'til early in the afternoon planting trees and flowers, painting, cleaning, and raking. This program enabled students to serve the city that hosts Wake Forest, but more importantly it brought Winston-Salem Into the Lives of Denes.

America's Games and Wake Forest OLYMPICS

The 1996 Olympics may have been in Atlanta, Georgia, but Wake Forest played an important part in this historical event. Between June 26 and August 2, 1996, the Reynolda campus served as the home for the Italian Olympic team, housing in total some 250 athletes and officials. Wake students and faculty joined Winston-Salem residents on Monday, June 24, 1996, to cheer on the torch when it arrived on campus during its trek to Atlanta. However, the Italian Olympic Team and the torch weren't the only ones headed for Atlanta. Andy Bloom finished fourth in discus at the Olympic Trials and is an alternate for the US team. Our very own ARA chef Michael Crane joined the thousands of Olympians and visitors at the Olympics, serving as an Executive Chef for the Olympic Athletes. Spectators traveling to the 1996 Olympic Games may have seen more than athletes performing. The Wake Forest Gospel Choir was invited to sing in Atlanta. The Olympics were America's games and Wake Forest was definitely an integral player.

This school year brought on the usual celebrations and parties, but also included the additions of 24 hour keycard access and a new bookstore, among other things. The Perritt Plaza is shown here in memory of Paul Mory, a PiKA who died following a car accident last summer. The biggest controversy on campus this year was the addition of gates at the Reynolda Road, University Parkway and Polo Road entrances. The protest shown was in vain, as the gates will be installed over the summer.

If one advances confidently, in the direction of his own dreams and endeavors, he will meet with a success unexpected in common hours.

Thoreau

Since 1834, Wake Forest has strived to prepare men and women for personal enrichment, enlightened citizenship, and professional life.

The Baptist State Convention of North Carolina founded Wake Forest Institute on February 3, 1834 and named Samuel Wait as the principal. The school began on the plantation of Calvin Jones which lay in Wake County, North Carolina, near where the village of Wake Forest later developed. The school was rechartered in 1834 as Wake Forest College, and remained exclusively a college of liberal arts for men until 1894. During that year, Wake established the School of Law, and followed with a School of Medicine in 1902, a Division of Graduate Studies in 1961, and a School of Business Administration in 1948 (which was replaced by the Babcock Graduate School of Management in 1969). Finally in 1942, Wake Forest admitted women as undergraduate students.

The trustees of Wake Forest College accepted a proposal by the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation to relocate the College to Winston-Salem in 1946. The late Charles H. Babcock and his wife, the late Mary Reynolds Babcock, contributed the campus site, while the necessary building funds were received from many other sources. Between 1952 and 1956, the first fourteen buildings were erected in Georgian style on the campus. In 1956, the College moved all operations to the Winston-Salem site and left the 122-year-old campus in the town of Wake Forest to the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

In 1967, the College's augmented character was recognized by the change in its name to Wake Forest University. Today, enrollment in all schools of the University stands at over 5,000, including approximately 3,600 undergraduate students. In addition, the undergraduate students represent 46 different states and 29 different countries, with a nearly equal distribution of men and women.

CAREER SERVICES -- PREPARING FOR LIFE AFTER COLLEGE

Wake Forest provides many tools necessary to every undergraduate student, but possibly the most important is the Office of Career Services. With two goals — to assist students in their plans for their professional future and to support recruiters in their search for valuable employees — Career Services aids the job search process by bringing together students and employers.

Beth Welsh, a counselor at Career Services, asserts that the Office strives to give career counseling and post-graduate guidance by individually assessing a student's needs and aiming to specifically meet those needs. Beth boasts that their student-placement rate for employment in 1994 was 91%. With over 200 organizations participating in on-campus recruiting, students are sure to get interviews for jobs of their choice.

Whereas graduating seniors find the Office indispensable in finding permanent jobs, Career Services aids underclassmen in finding internships related to their interests. In addition, sophomores and juniors should take advantage of the many workshops offered by Career Services on topics such as resume writing, interview preparation, and networking skills.

SWITCHING PLACES: A PERSONAL ACCOUNT ON TRANSFERRING

"Have fun; Study hard; College will be the best years of your life." My fathers' words rang through my ears as I pulled away from Randolph-Macon Woman's college for the last time — only half-way through my sophomore year. Unfortunately, my father's prophecy failed to materialize at my first school and I realized that a change was needed.

Because it is nearly impossible for transfers to receive on-campus housing, I had to be resourceful. I obtained a list of transfer students from the admissions office and called several of the students about possibly rooming with me in an apartment. While I had some reservations about living with people I had never met before, I moved in with Stacey from Michigan and Katy from West Virginia. Together we began the battle of WFU classes, transferring credits, and hardest of all, meeting people. These tasks were extremely difficult, and I frequently found myself longing for the sense of camaraderie that I had felt at my old school. However, I realized that to succeed in life, you sometimes need to cross unfamiliar territory. For me that meant two years of summer school, badgering for credits with the Registrar, and pushing myself to be outgoing — even when I did not feel like it.

Hard work? Yes! But am I glad that I did it? Definitely! I have produced some quality work and learned a lot about myself. I have made friendships at both schools which will last a lifetime. I think that I am a much better person for transferring, and because of this experience, I am prepared to make the years after college, "the best years of my life."

THE STUDENT'S ROLE IN BENSON CENTER'S ART COLLECTION

Wondering through Benson Center, students can admire and study works by such artists as Picasso, Paul Cadmus, and Ellsworth Kelly. Have you ever wondered how these art pieces are chosen? Every four years selected students from the Fine Arts Committee venture to New York City with approximately $25,000, allocated to the committee by the University, to purchase artwork. However, the trip itself is only a small part of what goes into making these purchases. The students spend a lot of time researching contemporary artists and contacting artists' galleries in reaching their decision.

Since its first trip in 1962, Wake Forest has developed a respectable art department which offers majors in both art history and studio art. In addition, the collection has grown remarkably and includes a diverse collection of works that present the changing views and trends in art that have taken place over the last twenty years. Many types of media are represented in the collection, including painting, drawing, woodcut, lithography, etching, photography and large scale sculpture. It is the school's hope that the collection will continue to inspire an appreciation of the visual arts and familiarize students with some of the more influential artists of our time.

Somewhat I can't believe that there are any heights that can't be scaled by a man who knows the secret of making his dreams come true. This special secret, it seems to me, can be summarized in four C's. They are Curiosity, Confidence, Courage and Constancy and the greatest of these is confidence. When you believe in a thing, believe in it all the way.

During its 20 year history, the Wake Forest Cardiac Rehabilitation program has proudly helped over 2000 patients. The success Wake's rehab program has made it a model for similar programs throughout North Carolina.

Dr. Henry Miller, cardiologist, and Dr. Paul Ribisl, the current chairman of the Health and Sports Science Department, created the cardiac rehabilitation program at Wake Forest in 1975. With the aid of a grant funded by the American Heart Association, the two were able to create a program designed to help rehabilitate patients with a history of cardiovascular surgeries, heart failure, myocardial infarction, argina pectoris, and other coronary ailments. Participants are admitted to the program by referral from their physician. Upon admission, participants undergo a multidisciplinary assessment to identify specific areas to be addressed in the rehabilitation process. The current director of the program, Dr. Peter Brubaker, explains that the patients learn to strengthen their cardiovascular system by exercising, improving their diet, reducing their stress and quitting unhealthy habits such as smoking.

There are currently 14 graduate assistants from the HSS Department and 10 to 15 undergraduate students who volunteer their mornings to help these patients. In addition, some undergraduates have the option of receiving credit for the work they perform in the program.

Sightseeing in the Alps during free time on the International Accounting trip.

SPECIAL COURSES OFFERING INTERNATIONAL TRAVEL

Study at Wake Forest is certainly not restricted to the classroom. Many of the departments offer special courses in foreign countries during the summer or winter breaks. Students can choose to study anything from third world politics in Bangladesh through the Department of Politics, to reproductive habits among Boobies (a seabird) in the Galapagos Islands with the Biology Department, to cultural changes and ethnohistory of the Garifuna people in Roatan Island, Honduras through the Department of Anthropology. Details on a few of the international courses are as follows:

For the last fifteen years the theater department has taken 5 to 20 students to study theater in London for two weeks during winter break. The two credit pass/fail course includes attendance and critiques of ten plays, backstage visits to theaters, and a trip to Stratford-upon-Avon to see a production by the Royal Shakespeare company.

Business and accounting students can earn four credits while traveling throughout Europe over a month-long period by taking either an International Accounting course or an International Business course through the School of Business and Accountancy. The International Business course consists of site visits and presentations by such companies as British Airways, BMW in Munich, and Swiss Bank in Zurich. In the International Accounting course students visit offices of each of the "Big Six" accounting firms, the International Accounting Standards Committee in London, and other businesses such as Coca-Cola in Berlin and Lloyds of London. All in all, these international programs give students an educational alternative to full semester study abroad.

One of the most powerful tools in the computer industry today, the IBM Thinkpad, is one of the most powerful tools in the classroom today at Wake Forest University.

This year the school implemented a computer pilot program consisting of 100 students who were chosen from students in the class of 1999 in preparation for the full student participation that will be required for the class of 2000. During an orientation, these students were introduced to many of the programs included on the Thinkpad such as Microsoft Word, Power Point and Microsoft Excel, as well as to the Internet and the World Wide Web. Students also learned how to obtain information about the libraries' holdings via the computer, allowing students to do research right on their own computers in their own room. In addition, students in the pilot program took a seminar class on a subject such as history or politics that integrated the use of the laptop computer into the learning environment.

This program was begun as a testing ground for the larger program that is underway for the class of 2000. More of the seminar classes will be offered as the program goes full force next year. It is the hope of the school that students will soon bring their computers to every class facilitating the teaching process. For example, students can view professor prepared Power Point presentations on their personal computers or submit completed homework instantly to the professor. In addition, both faculty and students will spend less time gathering information and more time analyzing and discussing its implications.

"There are many professions represented among us. There are Bakers, Popes, Kings and Taylors. In addition, we have Young but no old; a Long but no short . . ." Surely, every Wake Forest student remembers a similar "name speech" performed by Ed Christman during their first few days of orientation at the school. For over a decade Dr. Christman has made incoming students feel welcome by including several hundred students' names in a speech that he delivers. Dr. Christman feels that the "most important part of our school is the people and the most important thing to new students is their uniqueness, their honor, and their value" and thus he feels that it is important to acknowledge the names of as many incoming students as possible in his welcoming speech.

It is ironic that the man of names has one that is so appropriate, Christman. Dr. Christman has been the Wake Forest Chaplain since 1969. But his history with Wake Forest started long before that. Dr. Christman graduated with a BA degree from Wake in 1950 and with a law degree also from Wake Forest in 1953. Dr. Christman originally planned to practice law in a courtroom. In fact, he chose to come to Wake from Jacksonville, FL because of its reputation for an excellent pre-law program. But his life took an unexpected turn during his final year of law school when Dr. Christman felt a strong calling to pursue a religious career. Upon graduation from Southeastern Baptist Theology Seminary and Union Theology, Dr. Christman returned to Wake Forest to work as an assistant Chaplain and the Baptist Campus Minister, becoming in 1969, the full-time Chaplain.

Throughout Dr. Christman's 50 year affiliation with the university, he has watched the school undergo many changes. He feels that the most significant of these was the school's move from Wake Forest, NC to Winston-Salem. As a result of the move the school has grown remarkably in population size, reputation, and available facilities. But he likes to remind students that vision and tenacity have always existed at WFU. Whereas our school now has a national reputation for offering excellent professors and facilities, our ancestors were of praiseworthy character also. Our school is what it is today because of the "rich soil" in which it was founded. Dr. Christman enjoys teaching students about Wake's history. Every couple of years since 1971 he has arranged trips back to the old campus of Wake Forest hoping to pass on the memory of those people who contributed to our university. Dr. Christman's pride for the school runs deep, and he has even been known to "roll the quad" for basketball victories during Thanksgiving or Christmas breaks when students were not around to do so.

Dr. Christman hopes that students remember that he was a man who always looked to Biblical stories for guidance and advice for those students who came to him with their concerns. He believes that the Bible contains insight and guidance that God provides primarily through its stories. In addition, he wants people to know that he was a "person who saw the connection between the mind and the spirit, faith and reason, education and religion. Although for many people religion is personal and individual, disconnected from reason, [he] tried to show that religion is communal."

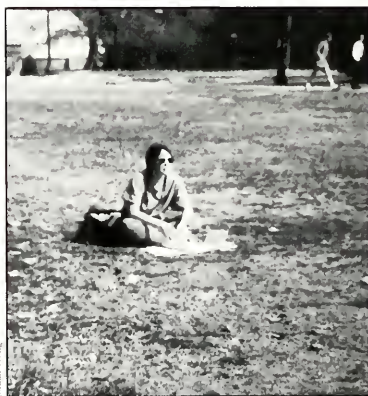

All together, Dr. Christman is a man who cares deeply for Wake Forest University and even deeper for the students, faculty, and administrators who contribute to the school. He sees the value of every individual and recognizes that "we have something together in this institution. We share a common trust and vision that together, not separately, we can learn."

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY

Talented & Determined

Francie Goodridge's 13th ranked squad placed first in four out of five regular season meets. The team was lead by senior All-American Nicole Stevenson and Cindy Moreshead in which one or the other placed first and second in every Demon Deacon contest. The team placed a strong second in the ACC Championships held on the WFU course. Nicole Stevenson represented the lady deacs at the NCAA Championships after the squad had a disappointing six place finish in the District Championships.

Men's Basketball

Shooting to the Top

This season's edition of the Wake Forest Men's Basketball team was arguably the best, finishing the season with 26 wins, a second consecutive ACC Tournament title, a trip to a sixth straight NCAA Tournament, and an appearance in the Midwest Regional finals. Junior Tim Duncan was named ACC Player of the Year, ACC Tournament MVP, First-Team All-American, and National Defensive Player of the Year.

RESIDENT ADVISORS

Resident Life and Housing has the difficult task of choosing a handful of students to serve as Resident Advisors each year. This responsibility requires training, a special course, and dedication to peers' well-being. Resident Advisors plan programs for residents and are always prepared to deal with the hassles of college dorm life, like lock-outs, fire drills, and this year, power outages!

Colophon

The 1996 Howler is the 94th edition of the Wake Forest University yearbook. The Howler is produced by the Student Publications Board of Wake Forest University. Opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the trustees, administration, faculty, staff, or students of Wake Forest University.

The Howler offices are located in room 500 of the Benson University Center. All correspondence should be sent to P.O. Box 7306, Reynolda Station, Winston-Salem, NC 27109. The office telephone number is (910) 759-5289.

This edition of the Howler was printed by the Delmar Publishing Company in Charlotte, North Carolina. Our representative was Elizabeth Wearn.

Copies of the book are provided as a part of tuition to all students of Wake Forest University. Funding for the publication is provided by the University through the Student Budget Advisory Committee in an allocation process.

This edition has 352 pages and has a trim size of twelve by nine inches. The press run was 2700 copies. Paper is 100 pound gloss. Smyth sewn binding, rounding, and backing with headbands were used. Four color processing is on 64 pages and spot color is on 51 pages. The endsheets are Graphica Vellum Wheat with gold ink PMS873 and black ink applied. The cover material is black lexicon 41075B. The cover was model embossed with gold silk screen ink. The cover photograph was taken by Wendy Coulson. Type styles used in the book vary.

All pages were designed on Macintosh LCII and LCIII computers using Aldus Pagemaker 5.0 and Apple Laser Writer 16/600 PS. Pages were submitted on disk to Delmar for publication.

Color and black and white photographs for this edition were taken by members of the Wake Forest University Photography Staff. Black and white film used included Kodak TMax 100, 400, and 3200 film. All black and white photographs were developed and printed in the staff darkrooms, located in Room 506 of the Benson University Center. Color slides were taken on Kodak and Fuji film and processed locally by Photo Lab and Talton Professional Photo Finishing. All portraits were taken by Carl Wolf Studios of Sharon Hill, Pennsylvania.

Advertising was solicited by Yearbook Press of America, Marietta Georgia.

From the Desk of the Editor

Wake Forest University holds a special place in the hearts of all those who attend. Though we come from our respective homes, which are scattered both nationally and internationally, students devote their years here to being an important part of the Wake Forest Community. As a result, alumni carry these experiences with them wherever they may travel as they depart from "Dear Old Wake Forest" and embark upon new journeys. Having recognized this allegiance in my own Wake Forest experience, I took my position as editor-in-chief of the 1996 Howler very seriously. The memories that we create while we are here are invaluable, and while we will always carry them with us, it is also nice to have a tangible memento of our time and experiences here. In my opinion, that is the purpose of the Howler--to somehow capture the essence of our lives and adventures throughout the year. Sounds easy enough, right? What I discovered over the course of the year, though, was that this was a more complex process than I first thought. In creating the 1996 Howler, I searched for whatever it is that evokes that feeling of allegiance in the students and alumni, but I quickly learned that I was going about it in the wrong way. I was desperately searching for an object that simply does not exist. There is no one thing that represents Wake Forest University. Wait Chapel on a beautiful Spring day, the toilet-papered quad following a basketball victory, the blooming magnolia trees, and the Demon Deacon are all familiar images of the campus. Wake Forest would not be the same without just one of these items, but by themselves they only portray a single aspect that contributes to the Wake Forest Community. Over the course of my search I began to understand the importance of the concept "one from many." Each landmark, building, and individual on this campus contributes to Wake Forest University. It is the unified diversity of the many that ultimately comprises what we have all come to know and love as Wake Forest University. In this book, we have tried to incorporate the many aspects of the university in order to preserve our Wake Forest memories for a lifetime.

I would like to say a very special thank you to each member of the Howler staff for their dedication, and especially to the editors who put in long hours on into the summer in order to meet our final deadline. Although in those hectic final days I'm sure I didn't say it enough, I hope that you know that your time and energy were truly appreciated. This book would have never been possible without all of your hard work. I would also like to thank all of the departments and individual students who volunteered their pictures and assisted us with including those events which we would not have been able to cover without their help. Thank you, Ken Zick, for your genuine interest and assistance with publications, and thank you, Joanna Iwata and the Benson Center Staff, for all of your help throughout the year. A very special thank you is extended to Lavonn Bell for her many phone calls and words of encouragement--she is a loyal friend of the Howler. Having the opportunity to be editor-in-chief of the Howler has been a true honor. I hope that the book we have created for you will always remind you of the special times you spent here at Wake Forest.

Lori J. Shores
